1960 ARENA

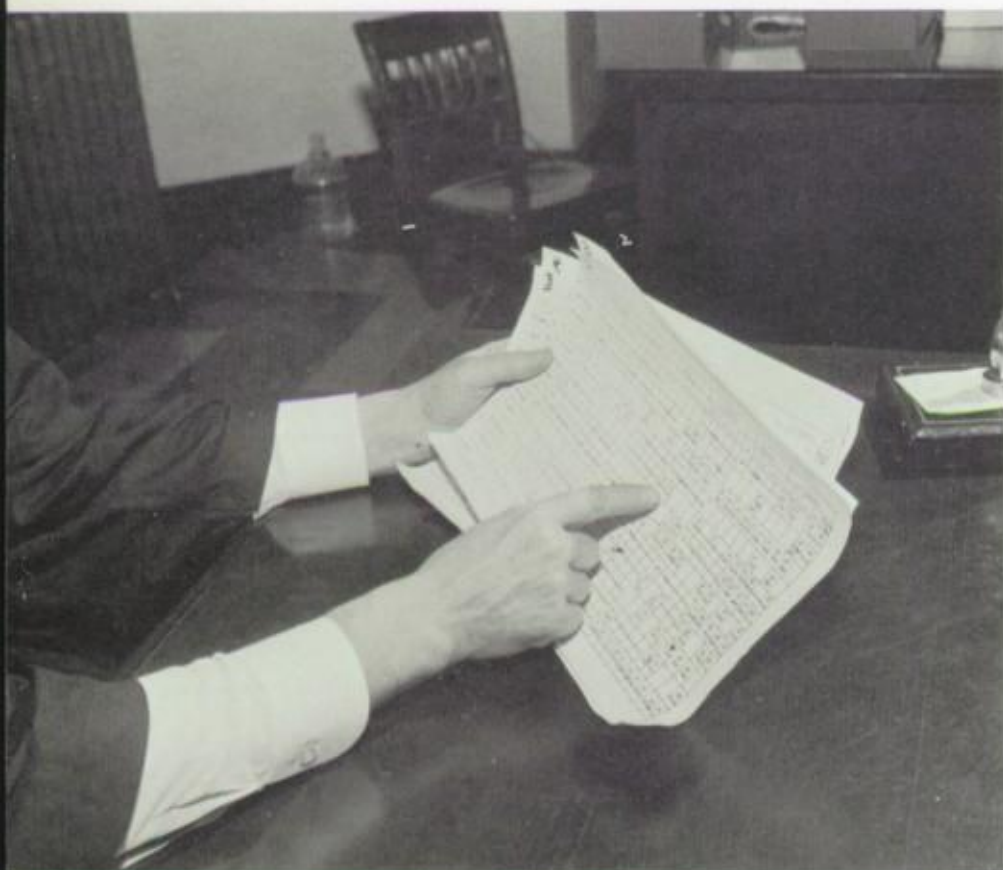

Canisius High School

Buffalo, New York

Our first hesitant footsteps across the foyer of Canisius High School marked the beginning of a four year association with men robed in the black of cassock or academic gown, with men who have devoted their lives to the education and betterment of Christian youth. Their hands—competent and willing—led us over a course filled with ideals and experiences that can never be discovered in any book. The course was not a new one; four hundred years have elapsed since a man named Ignatius first charted it and set it down as the basis of Jesuit education in his Ratio Studiorum. But theirs has been the job of casting the bright light of learning on the darkness of our ignorance, inspiring us to grasp it and cherish it in our hearts so that we may pass from the uncertainty of youth to the maturity of manhood.

Faculty

VERY REV. DONALD L. KIRSCH, S.J.
Rector and President of Canisius High School

Dedication

The success of an educational institution is determined and should be measured by the quality of its administration and faculty, as well as of its graduates. Student, faculty member, administrator,—at one time or another, the Very Rev. Donald L. Kirsch, S.J., who is now completing his first year as Rector and President of Canisius High School, has borne all three titles. A 1928 graduate of Canisius, he returned as a faculty member in 1944 to the Washington Street school in time to help supervise the move to a more spacious campus. As Assistant Principal in charge of Canisius-on-Delaware from 1944-48, Prefect of Discipline from 1948-52, and Principal from 1952-59, he saw the new school increase from its small initial holding to the present block-long rectangle. And as the years passed and times changed, his was the task of expanding the curriculum to meet the demands of a modern world. Sacrificing none of the essentials of a justly renowned system of education, he introduced new courses and facilities so that Canisius would continue to impart to each student the best possible education. His vast experience in each phase of education at 1180 Delaware enables him to see each individual viewpoint and suits him admirably for his present post.

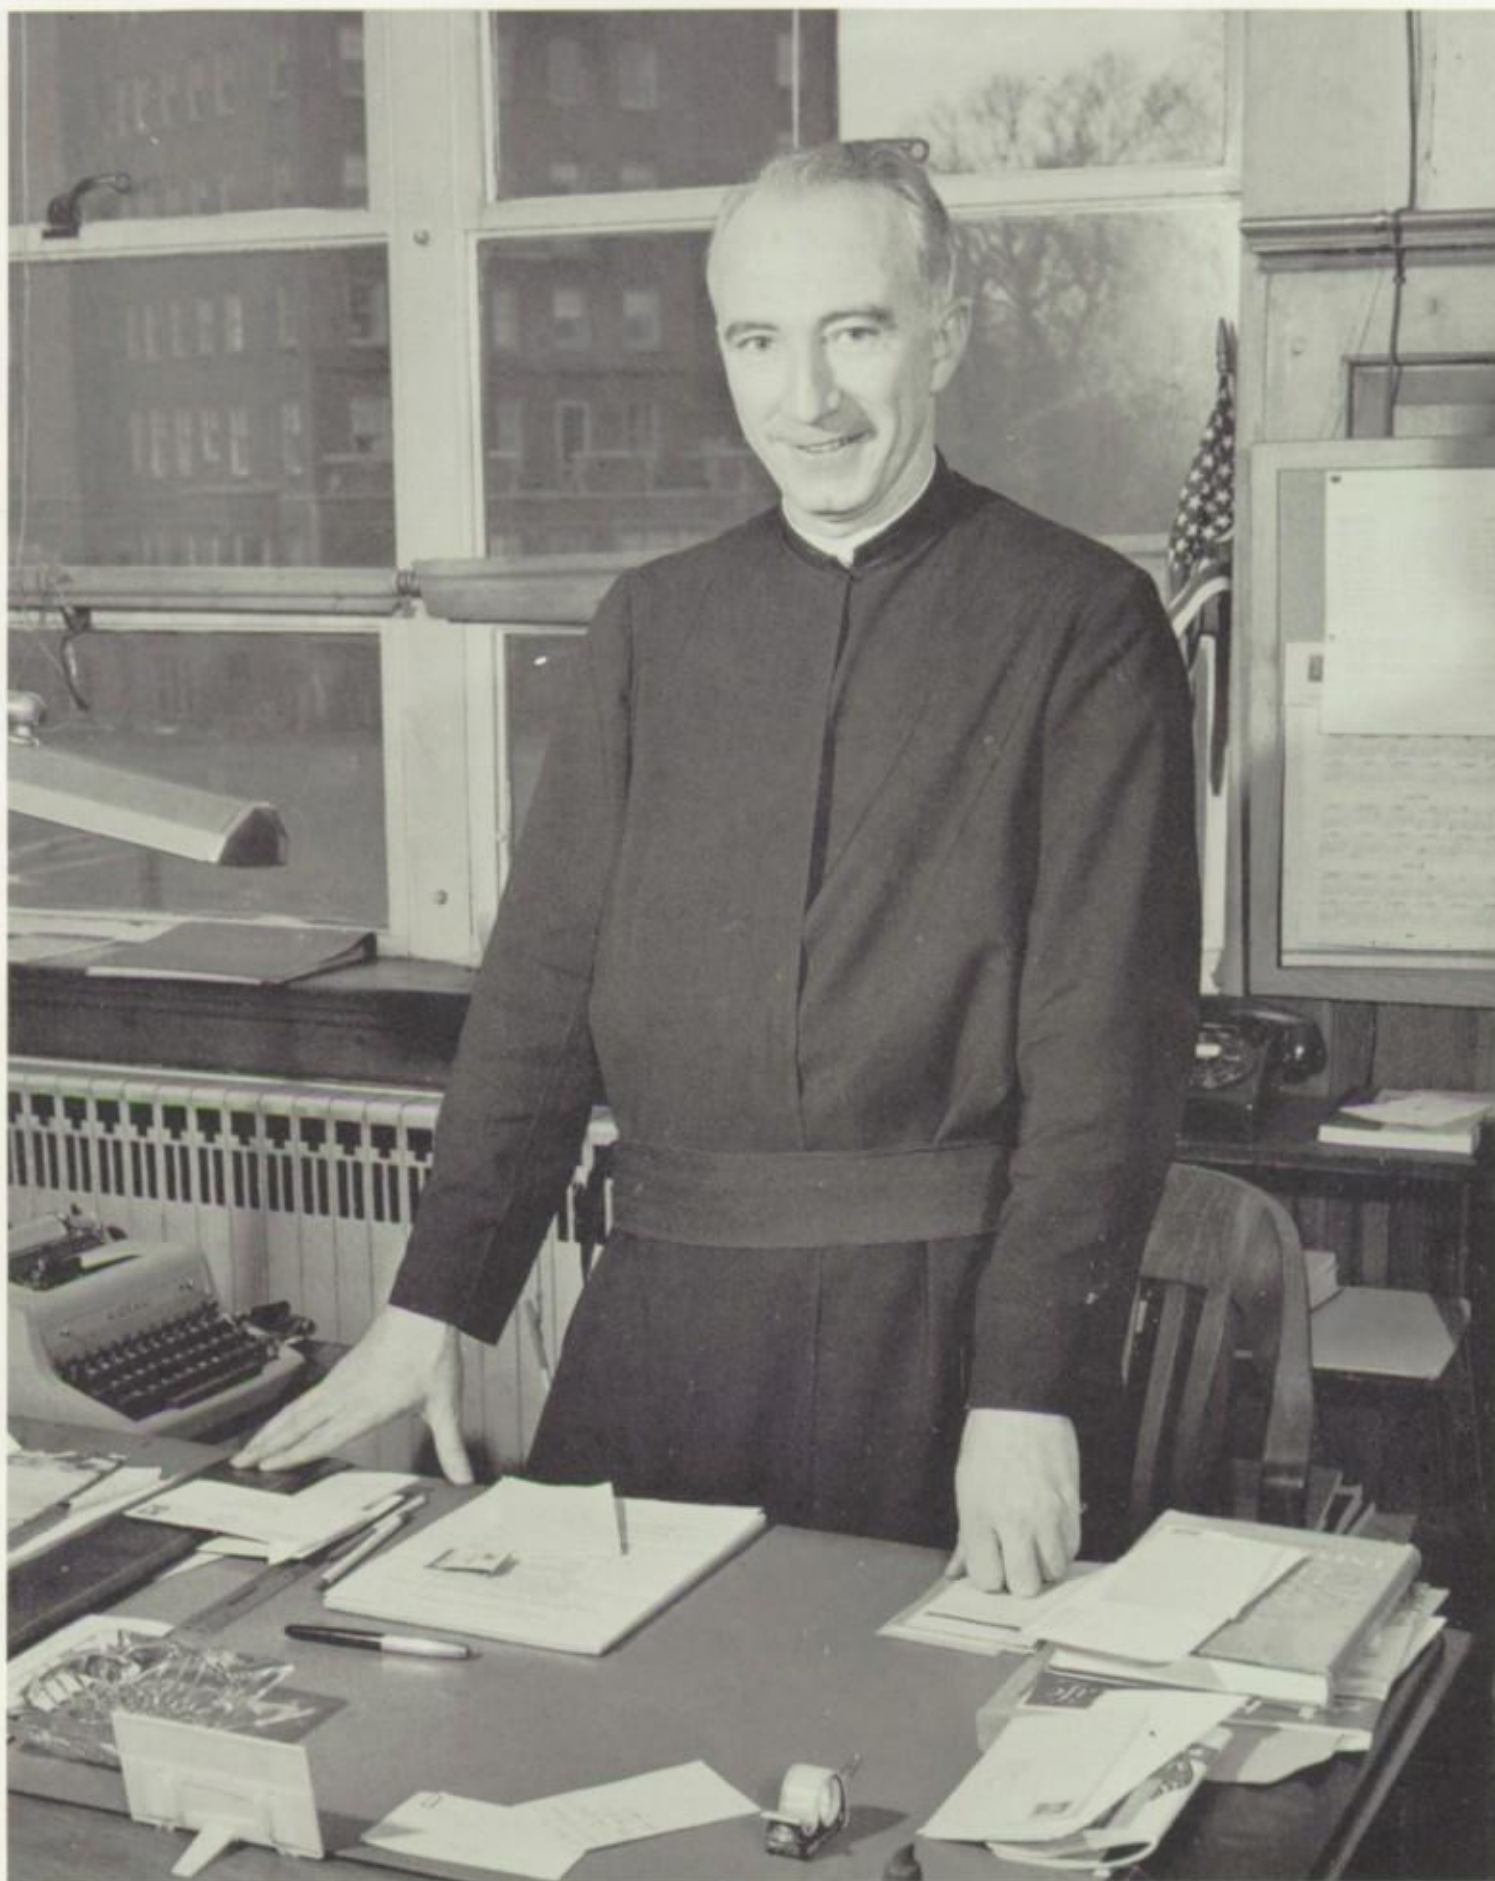

And so, Fr. Kirsch, We the graduates of 1960 who have been privileged to finish our high school course as you begin your term as Rector and President dedicate to you this our yearbook, the 1960 ARENA.

With a keen interest in all phases of Canisius life, Fr. Rector was present at all Canisius functions, such as the annual Spelling Bee.

Three years is not a major segment out of man's three score and ten; but the changes that occur during early adolescence's first three years of high school mark this short span as an important period. The incoming freshman is impressed—and not a little overwhelmed—by 1180 Delaware; huge halls, new subjects, serious application and discipline, black-robed figures towering over him become the measure of his growth. As freshman year yields to sophomore year, and sophomore year passes to junior year, the Canisius student does not recognize much of a change in himself. But Canisius has gradually ceased to be the strange and has become the familiar. Growth—mentally and spiritually—has kept pace with added inches and deepening voice; the boy is becoming a man.

The classroom is the heart of every secondary school; and it is the student's classroom achievement that is recorded on his report card and recognized by his diploma. Yet, there are other phases of education the school must provide for. The wide range of extracurriculars offered at Canisius indicate the concern of the Jesuit system in developing the entire gamut of human faculties and in developing it to its fullest. Articulate and effective communication through the written and spoken word, a specialized penetration into matters beyond the scope of classroom syllabi, poise and assurance in both formal and informal social contacts, a deeper awareness of and relationship with his Creator,—these are the goals of extracurricular participation. The classroom shows the student how to think and how to get along with his fellow students; but hands actually doing and hands helping hands impress the lessons of the classroom more firmly and form the friendships that will be remembered.

Activities

The importance or prominence of any organization is judged first by its purpose, and secondly, by its success in achieving its aim. The ultimate end of the Canisius Sodality is to form Catholic leaders not only now as students, but also, in future years as professional men in all fields. Through a special devotion and consecration to the Blessed Mother, the sodalist is spurred on to seek excellence in all his undertakings. Perhaps this added incentive explains why the sodalist is usually a true Canisius Crusader. The senior sodalists under the direction and guidance of Mr. V. P. McDonough, S.J., are confident they have accomplished their primary goal. But to retain the spirit of the Sodality in the future, Mr. McDonough has launched a program of continuity—a plan of continued membership in the Sodality. Assisting Mr. McDonough in this program are the officers—D. Lee, Prefect; G. Hezel and G. Daigler, Vice-Prefects; J. Walsh, Secretary; and M. Ryan, Treasurer.

Brian McGrath, Al Culliton, and John Kublmann get a briefing from Mr. McDonough on the Novena of Grace talks.

Junior Sodality

Junior Sodality Officers M. Skulicz, D. Glauber, T. Kozlowski, A. Monteleone, and J. Zurek.

After his consecration to the Blessed Mother in Second year, the Sodalist takes another step forward, a step into the apostolate. He has passed the formative years of Sodality life, but the apostolate offers a new challenge in his life as a Sodalist. Fr. F. J. Reisert, S.J., has introduced the Juniors to the group apostolate currently working at the Veteran's Hospital. Prefect J. Zurek, assisted by Vice-Prefects D. Glauber and T. Kozlowski, has conducted a series of meetings explaining the needs and effects of such Sodality projects. The juniors have great expectations of not only expanding, but also improving the Apostolate of the Sodality in the oncoming year.

Under the moderation of Mr. John P. Carriero, S.J., assisted by Prefect Russell Massaro, Vice-Prefects Richard Hezel and Michael Petrina, Secretary Joseph Rosenecker, and Treasurer Stanley Krempa, the Sophomore Sodality brings to realization a well-planned program of spiritual activity. Its special aim is to continue the probation of freshman year and to prepare candidates for the Temporary Act of Consecration to Our Lady. The attitude of the sophomore Sodalist is "Fidelity to the Marian way of life is the only way to succeed as a Sodalist". He is made to realize that this year he is laying the indispensable foundation for the more predominantly apostolic work of junior and senior years.

Mr. Carriero, S.J., Moderator, with First Vice Prefect R. Hezel, Second Vice Prefect M. Petrina, Secretary W. Walters, Prefect R. Massaro, and Secretary S. Krempa.

Freshman Sodality

To achieve the goal of the Sodality is a gradual process of assimilating the spirit of the Sodality. In the Freshmen Sodality the sanctification of one's self is mainly stressed, in order to lay the foundation for future life in the Sodality. The freshman Sodalist begins to see that the Sodality is not an extra-curricular activity which meets once a week, but rather, it's a way of life. The Freshman Sodality, directed by Fr. F. Pfeiffer, S.J., with Prefect J. Enright, and Vice Prefects R. Blum and J. Perley assisting, offers prospective members of the Sodality the opportunity to acquaint themselves with the Sodality Way of Life.

Fr. Pfeiffer, S.J., Moderator, chats with sodality officers T. Haney, R. Blum, J. Perley, and (seated) J. Enright.

St. John Berchmans Altar Society

The purpose of the St. John Berchman's Society is to organize the students who serve at the altar in the school, and to provide an opportunity for those who would like to learn to serve. The Society supplies the servers for the Knights of the Blessed Sacrament weekly Mass, and for the daily seven-thirty and eight o'clock Masses.

Berchmans' Officials C. Frank, P. Morgan, G. Daigler, F. DePeters, and G. Hezel.

Scientists at work.

Science Club

"Learning by doing" is the fundamental aim of the Science Club, here at Canisius. Under the combined direction of Fr. Musselman, S.J., and Mr. Bagnato, S.J., the club offers the students the opportunity to apply theories learned in class to laboratory experimentation. Besides classroom and laboratory work, the club offers its members the opportunity to tour local industrial plants, carrying further the idea of "learning by doing". The club also sponsors lectures and demonstrations by local scientists as an aid in the study of science and in the choice of a career. With its projects, lectures, and trips, the club ignites the students' hidden reserve of energy and imagination, which produce the scientists of tomorrow.

J. Schlaerth, J. Podgorski, A. Scoma, Mr. McPherson, and J. Kehoe listen as J. Miehl makes his point.

Dave Lee, Bill White, and Dave Leonard prep for the next U.N. session.

Although the U.N. Club is not the most publicized activity at Canisius, and although its membership is limited to those interested in international relations and functions of the United Nations, this club provides an intensive view of the restless age in which we live. Under the direction of Mr. McPherson, the U.N. Club discusses the world's political, economic, and social problems and their possible remedies. The Canisius delegation will represent Ireland at the 1960 model General Assembly of the United Nations.

Behren's Debate

Kev Carroll has the opponents as well as partner John Kueblewind interested.

Russ Massaro with some visual aids.

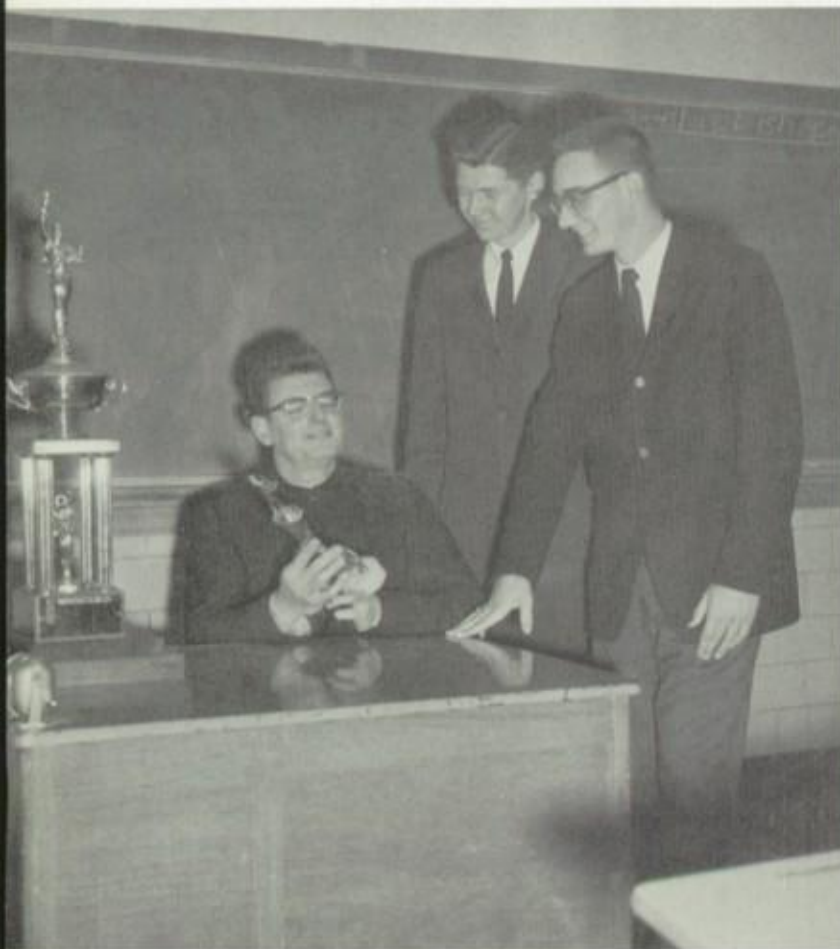

Bill Gleeson with another gesture.

Always one of the leading activities at Canisius, debating in the past few years has risen to even greater heights than in the past. Father Bartlett, S.J., Moderator of this year's squad, deserves much of the credit for the fine showing of Canisius teams. A veteran group of experienced debaters, plus a promising crop of novices, was the formula for success in this year's round of tournaments and speech festivals. The Behrens opened the season with a convincing victory at the Hamilton College Tournament, followed by fine performances at such events as the Jeffersonville and Aquinas High School tournaments, the Cortland State College Tournament, and the International Speech Festival at St. Michael's College in Toronto. In addition, a full program of intramural debates provides opportunity for practice in public speaking without the pressure of competition.

At Table: Fr. Bartlett, S.J., Moderator, M. Ryan, J. Walsh, D. Blandford; Front Row: A. Monteleone, M. Skulicz, D. Holman, J. Steinagle, J. Kueblewind, R. Laufer; Second Row: J. Hassett, J. Desmond, D. Glauber, M. Monin, J. Kroll, T. Usiak, J. Bylehyl, M. Petrina, R. Massaro, J. J. Murphy III.

"Ho, hum . . . another trophy."

Tom Usiak wins the annual Junior-Senior Oratorical Contest.

In addition to the annual Freshman-Sophomore and Junior-Senior Oratoricals, where the budding speaker demonstrates his ability to his fellow students, Canisius orators also participate in the numerous contests sponsored by various organizations such as the Optimist Club and the Knights of Columbus. Thanks to capable direction by Father Bartlett, S.J., this year's orators have established an enviable record in these competitions, thus fulfilling their twofold purpose of bringing honor to the school and furnishing training in public speaking for the student.

M. Skulicz practices as Fr. Bartlett, S.J., E. Kublewind, M. Monin, J. Walsb, J. Hajduk, and (standing) M. Ryan, J. Fitzgerald, T. Kozłowski, and D. Blanford look on.

Around Table: J. Coyle, C. Carbone, Mr. Coccia, S.J., Moderator, P. Schwach, D. Mier, G. Ginther, B. Loncto, L. Peters, J. Millonzi; Standing: T. McCarthy, R. Sciandra, R. Goda, R. Gietl, J. Russo,

Freshman Debating

The soft sell.

The Bellarmine Debating Society is designed to give freshmen the opportunity to learn the rudiments of debating before entering the more challenging sphere of the Behrens Society. Under the guidance of their Moderator, Mr. Coccia, S.J., they learn how to conduct a debate, how to use material, how to cross-examine, how to refute arguments, and so forth. In addition, a program of intramural debates and occasional meets with other novice groups allows the neophyte debater to put his newly acquired knowledge into practice.

Without a doubt, the stage crew plays an important role in the function of many events at Canisius. Perhaps its greatest claim to fame is its major role in the annual Passion Play. Many hours are spent during the weeks of preparation, before the curtain rises on opening night. Scenes have to be built, props and garments, cast in the ancient days of the Old Testament, must be secured. In addition to dramatic productions, the stage crew assists in the presentation of the Sodality Union Variety Show, the annual Mother's Club Fashion Show, the Christmas Assembly, and the many dances that are held throughout the year. This year the stage crew is under the direction of Mr. Edmund Clyne, S.J., who capably organizes all the tasks that arise.

How much enthusiasm, talent, and skill exist in the high school student along musical lines is not at all apparent until they have been given a chance to sing. Restricting their practice to lunch periods and two afternoons a week, the sixty members of this year's Glee Club have found enjoyment in what we all possess, a liking for music. Under the direction of Fr. Joyce, S.J., they have performed various selections from religious and secular choral music in music festivals and concerts at various local schools as well as at Canisius. A social organization as well as a cultural one, they have joined with a number of girls schools for combination concert-dances. Personality, poise, and pleasing voices—these are the aims of the Gleemen.

The Citadel

Everybody at Canisius is interested in the school newspaper—the Citadel, whose purpose is keeping the students informed and up to date on the happenings in and around school. The staff combines accuracy, seriousness, and humor in its articles. The Editor-in-Chief is Michael Ryan, with Bob Cole as Managing Editor, and John Walsh as Associate Editor. In charge on the sports section is Dennis Zolnowski. The staff of reporters is bossed by Jerry Hajduk. When the articles are finished, the typing staff takes over, while another group furnishes the visual touch. When the printer returns the finished copies, the exchange staff takes care of distributing the Citadel. All of these staffs are under the direct supervision of the Moderator of the Citadel, Mr. Donald Abruzzo, S.J., under whose watchful eye a well organized staff puts out a well written newspaper.

And even the editors???

The literary publication of Canisius High School is the Arena magazine. This magazine provides an outlet for the literature and essays of Canisius students. The articles vary throughout the magazine: those who write fiction come up with articles that are sometimes humorous, sometimes intriguing, always interesting; others choose non-fiction from science to segregation. This year the Arena inaugurated a "new look"—a photo essay for each issue, a college article, and an interview with a well-known local figure. Also included in this "new look" is much more in the line of photographs and drawings. Weekly writing seminars are held to help those interested to improve their literary talents. Early in February of this year a Creative Writing Workshop was held at Canisius, composed of students from area high schools. The staff of the Arena Magazine is headed by Editor-in-Chief Brian McGrath, assisted by Alfred Culliton, Edmund Filipowicz, Richard Kuczkowski, John Brosnan, and a long list of very capable writers, proof-readers, typists, artists, photographers, and the business staff.

The staff was writing.

The 1960 ARENA Yearbook was born on a September afternoon in a second floor office in Berchman's Hall, when a small group of aspiring workers assembled to plan the production of the annual publication. Though we could hardly be called veterans in the yearbook business, we made up in enthusiasm what we lacked in experience; and under the capable guidance of our moderator, Mr. Peter J. Roslovich, S.J., we were soon on our way to becoming an efficient staff. Co-Editors George Hezel and Frank DePeters, assisted by hard-working Associate Editor Maurice Furlong, drafted a staff. Work was begun immediately. With the dummy prepared, there came many jobs such as planning the cover, text, and pictures; but with perseverance, we finally had the foundation laid. Then came the rough spots. Working out the theme through text and pictures in the introduction, divider pages, and epilogue occupied the editors for weeks. And many a staff member put in anxious hours setting down on paper the gist about C.H.S. activities. The moderator's red pencil—sometimes demanding, sometimes encouraging, but always helpful—pushed us through. Pictures were a problem, and for these we are grateful to the sophomores and freshmen who constitute our photographic staff as well as to Mr. James McGee of Varden Studios; when these had to be supplemented, the moderator would fall back on his simplified five minute course in the unsimplifiable intricacies of focus, f-stop, and guide numbers and send us out to get our own snaps. We must confess, though, that our faltering efforts no doubt caused Mr. William Sloane of Baker, Jones, & Hausauer to look forward to our consignments of material with dread. He gave us no indication that such was the case; but we are convinced that it was his patience, equanimity, and unruffled competence that produced the 1960 ARENA, almost in spite of our messy, haphazard—though enthusiastic—efforts.

At any rate, the day has at last arrived. We watch your faces as you page through our book—ours, because of the ideas and ideals as well as the time and effort we put into it. But it is really your book, not just because of the support you gave it but more because it is the story of how you spent the past year or years at Canisius. We hope that now and in the future, this 1960 ARENA will serve as a symbol and as a reminder of what Canisius will always mean to you.

The editors had their heads together.

Financial Moderator Bro. Rosenecker, S.J., was collecting.

Business Moderator Mr. McDonough, S.J., was checking.

But where was the Moderator? ??

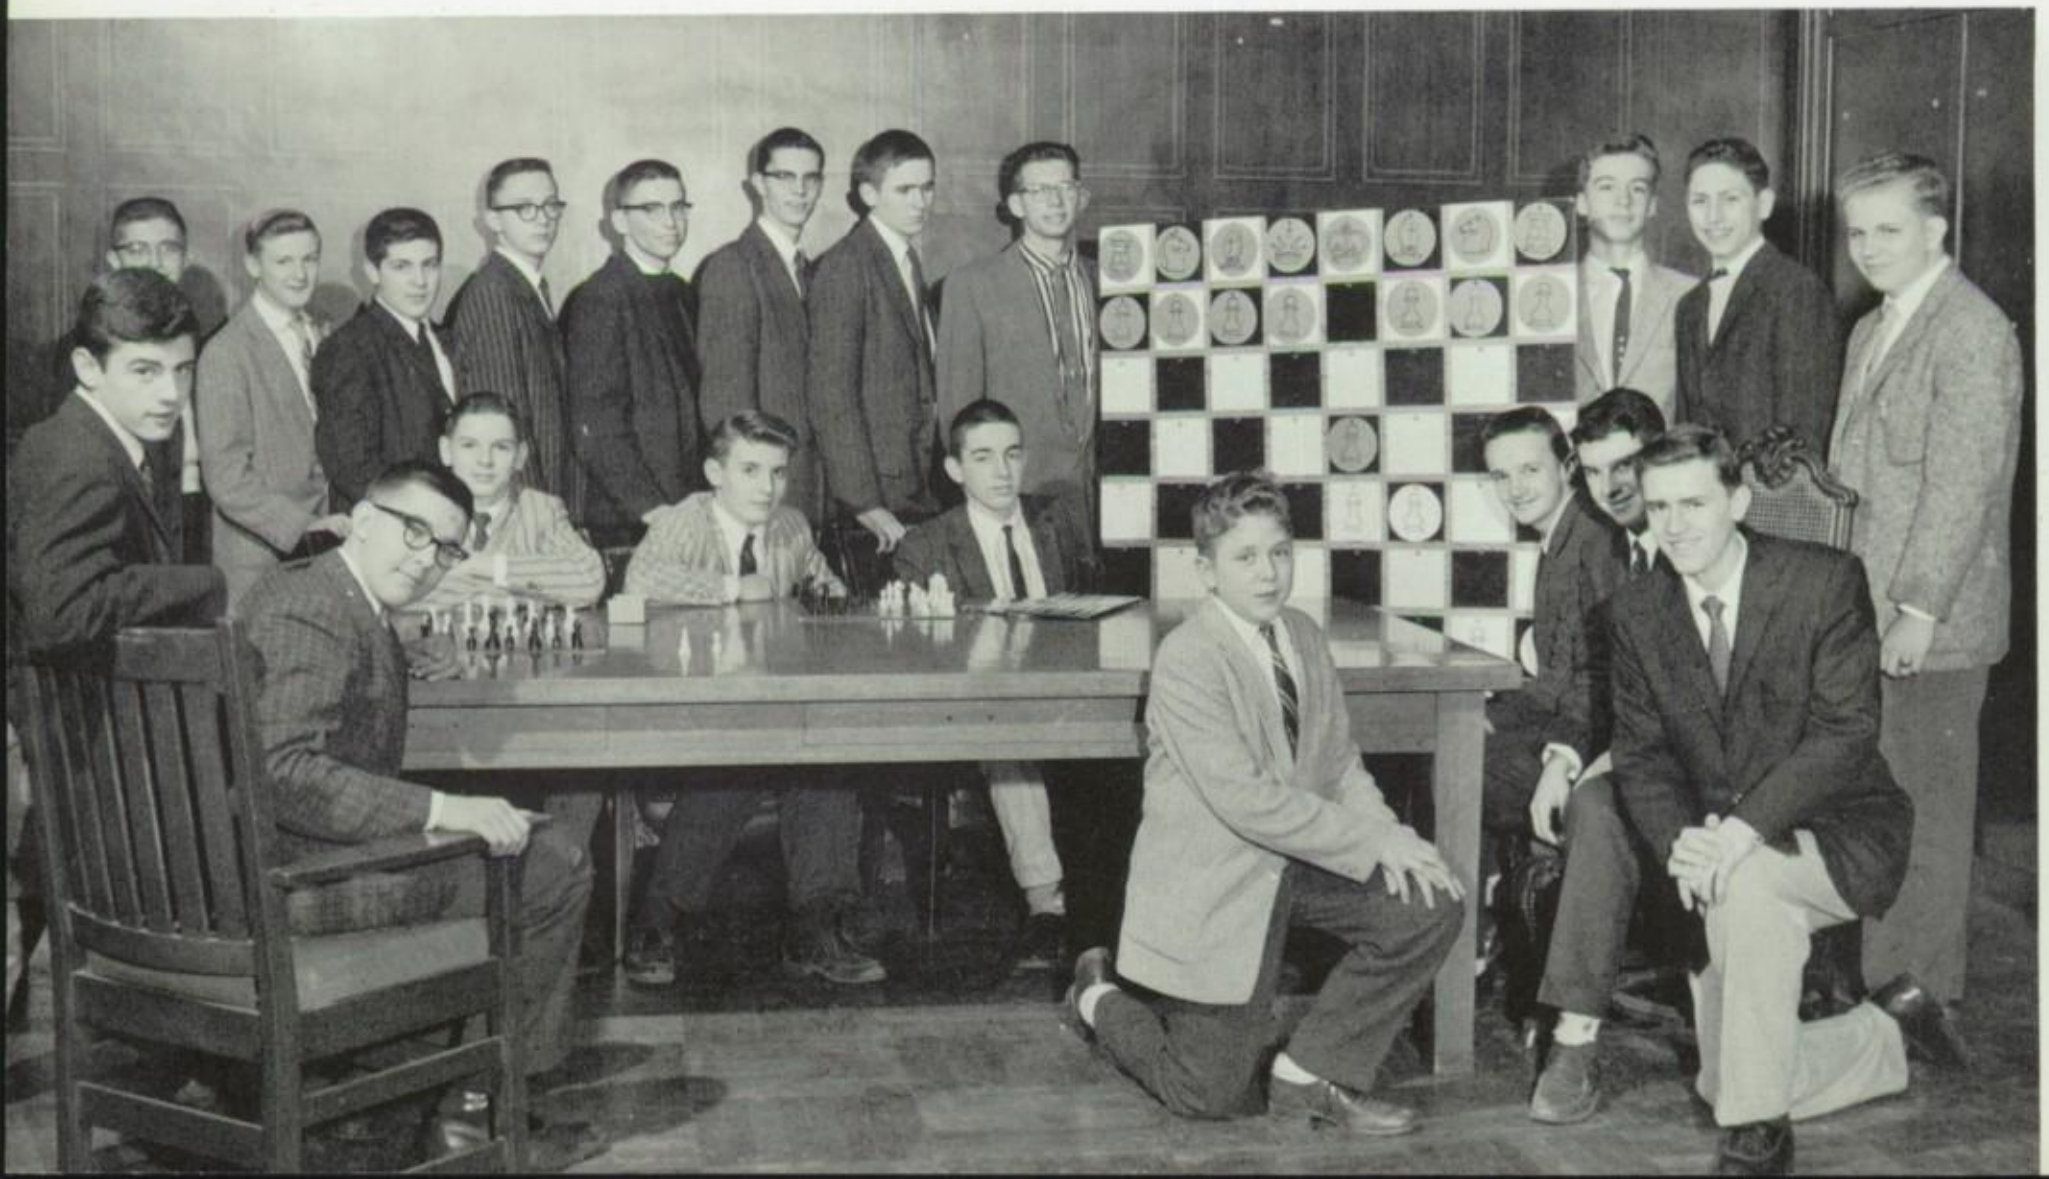

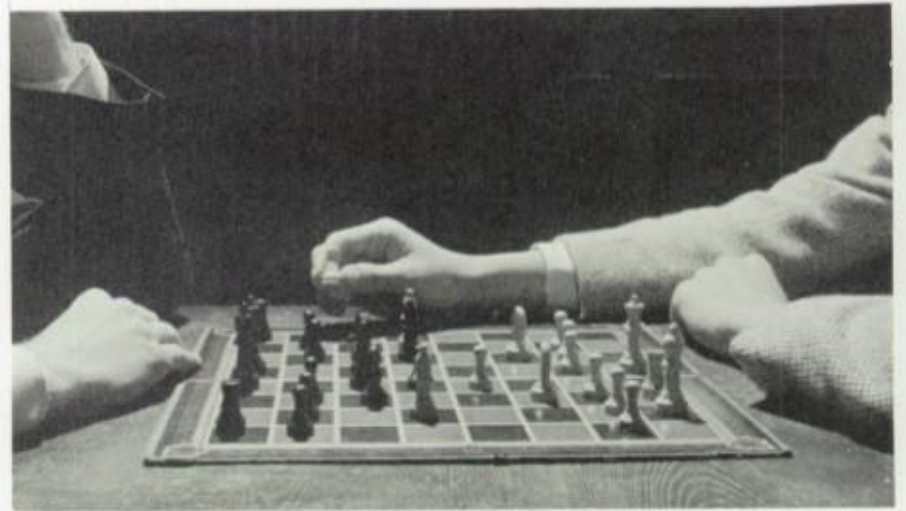

Through a long and drowsy afternoon, you may find the members of the chess club hunched in deep thought over their boards, carefully preparing for one of their frequent and protracted meets. And if you were fortunate enough to engage one of these paladins in conversation (outside the chess room, of course), you might elicit an admission that chess is fun; but your informant would rather characterize it as an art or, even better, a struggle in which the contemplative spirit prevails. It is the creative process, he may say, and the aggressive quality of the sport that lend chess its fascination; it is a mimicry of war, a dramatic struggle mirroring real life, a reproduction of all the vicissitudes of mortal existence, as well as an admirable schooling for the mind. It presents risks and bizarre combinations to the romantic; and to the classicist it supplies invincible logic and faultless technique. All this, of course, within the milieu of the fifteen high schools that form the Queen City Chess League, in which, under the direction of Mr. Sweeney, S.J., our team turns in a creditable performance.

To operate a library for a school of Canisius' size requires the services of two librarians and a staff of student assistants. Under the guidance of Mr. Thompson and Mrs. Hoolihan, the Canisius Library Staff sees to it that the ordinary tasks of maintaining order in shelves, racks, and card files are attended to. Working every day before and after school, as well as during lunch and recess, these students care for a collection of more than five thousand volumes and keep up to date a magazine rack that is supplied with over sixty leading periodicals. Besides helping to make possible an attractive and efficient center for reading and research, the Library Staff gains an appreciation of the work necessary to make books available and a familiarity with library science.

As the liason between the faculty and the student body, the Student Council attempts to unite the various classes and school organizations in collective support of the larger interests and purposes of the school as a whole. It therefore serves as both an advisory board and a unifying agent in support of all school activities, as well as in seeking to inspire and foster school spirit in every student. To achieve these ends, the Council draws its membership from each club and activity, thus enabling every student to have a voice in his representative body. At class meetings, the students relate and discuss their opinions and ideas on topics of school interest, which their representatives then bring to the Council meetings. Here matters are discussed, voted upon, and, if need be, brought to the attention of the school administration. With the essential element of co-operation—the co-operation of every student—the Student Council can and must be the most important organization in the school.

On the basis of aptitude, interest, and achievement shown, Mr. MacTaggart outlines career possibilities and refers the student to pertinent material in the Career Room.

Guidance Program

At the peak of adolescence, the high school senior also stands at the threshold of adulthood; and though his gaze is directed eagerly toward the future, the boy's lack of experience vies with the hopes and dreams of the man. College and career loom large on his horizon; yet how can he choose when the choices are mere names to him, when his own abilities, aptitudes, and even interests are vague. In such dilemmas, the Canisius student has found that he can turn for help to his class teacher, the Principal, or the Student Counsellor; and in his first year, there was even a Freshman Counsellor to bring his problems to. It comes as no surprise to the senior, then, to find that Canisius is concerned not just with helping him get into college but more important with helping him to select the college and career most suited to him. The facilities of a career room and a scholarship class augment the guidance facilities already available. Now more than ever the senior learns that individual attention and educational guidance are part of the Jesuit system.

Fr. Paone, S.J., class teacher of 4A, with Maurice Furlong, a Regents winner and 4A student.

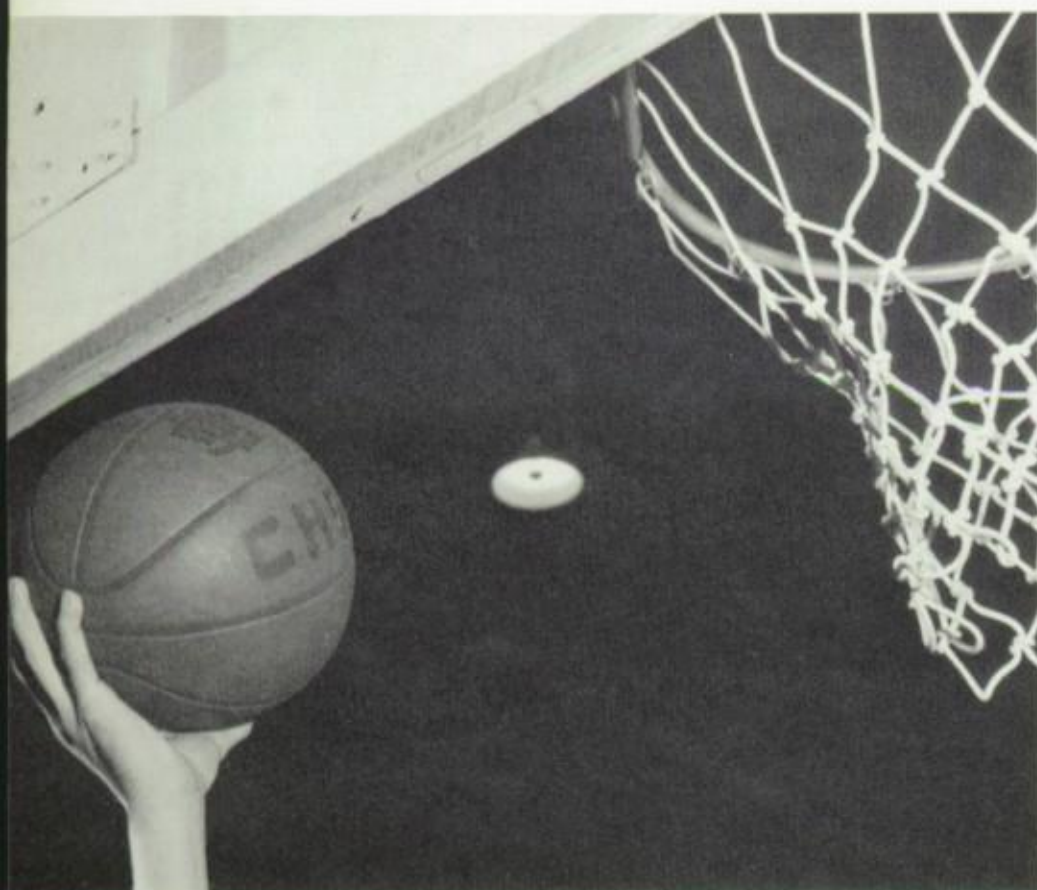

Fr. Mooney, S.J., and Mr. MacTaggart join the Principal, Fr. Dolan, S.J., in processing college applications. Three National Merit finalists and five K. of C. finalists are much to be happy about.

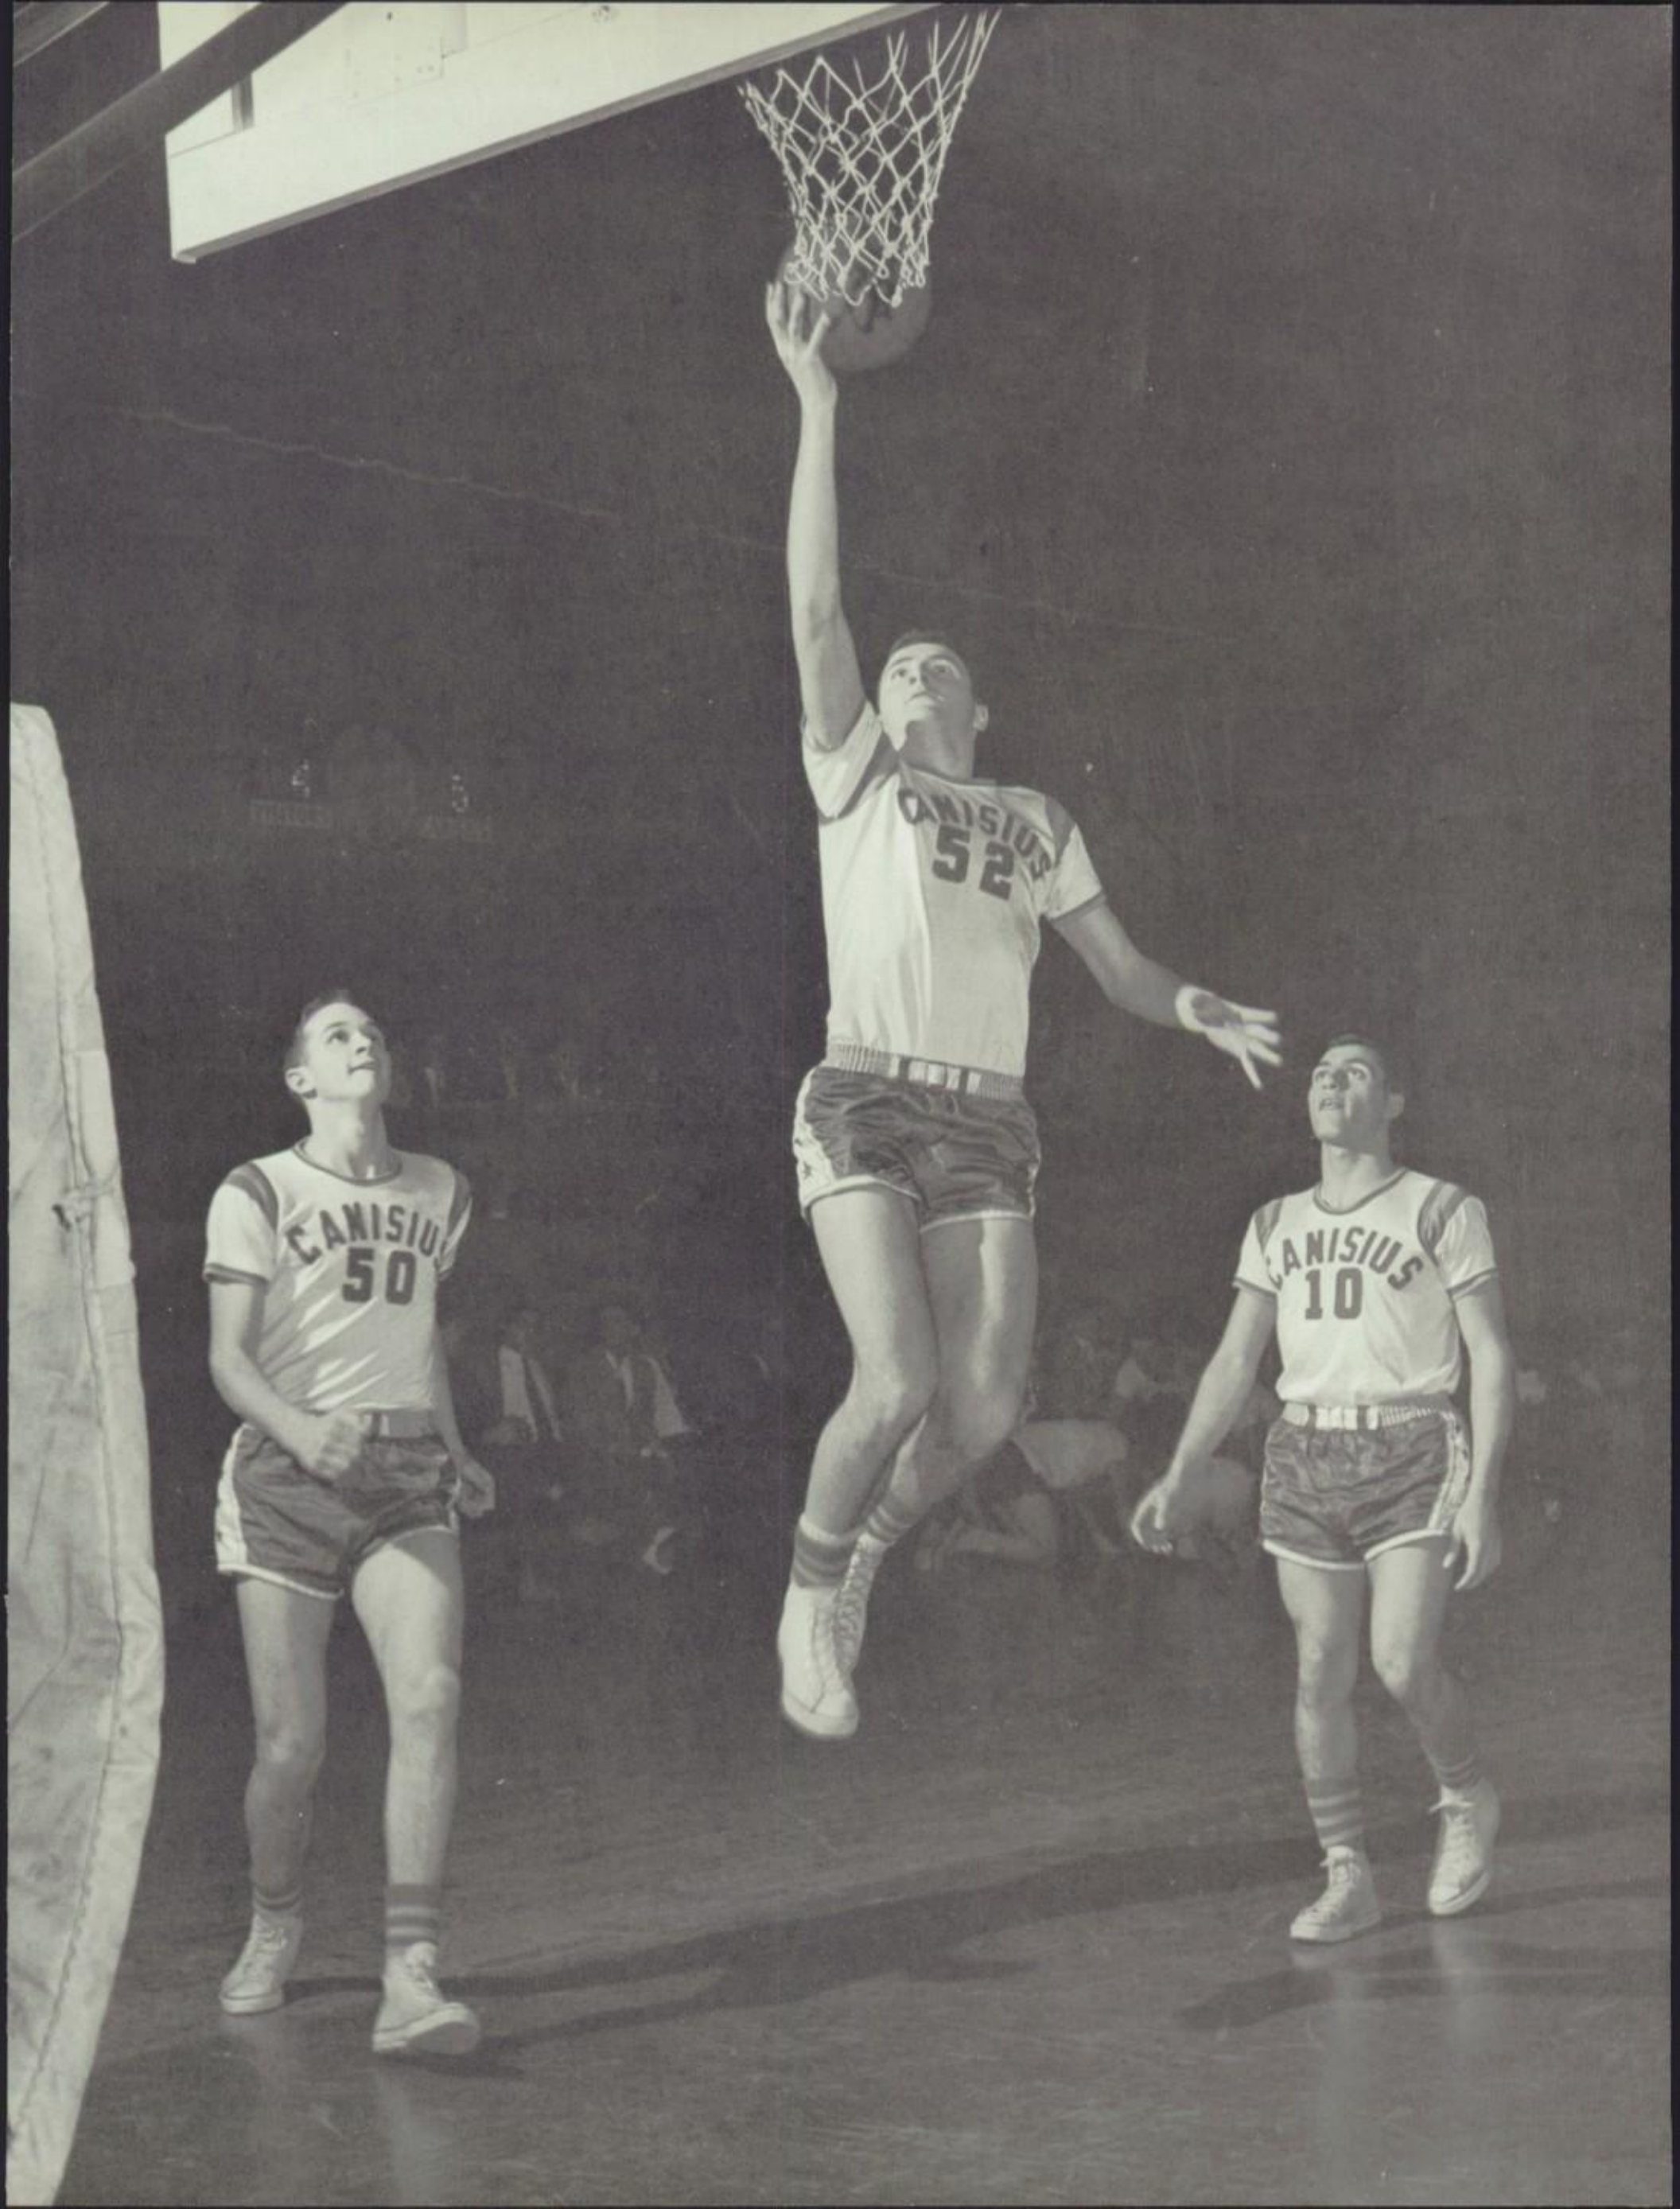

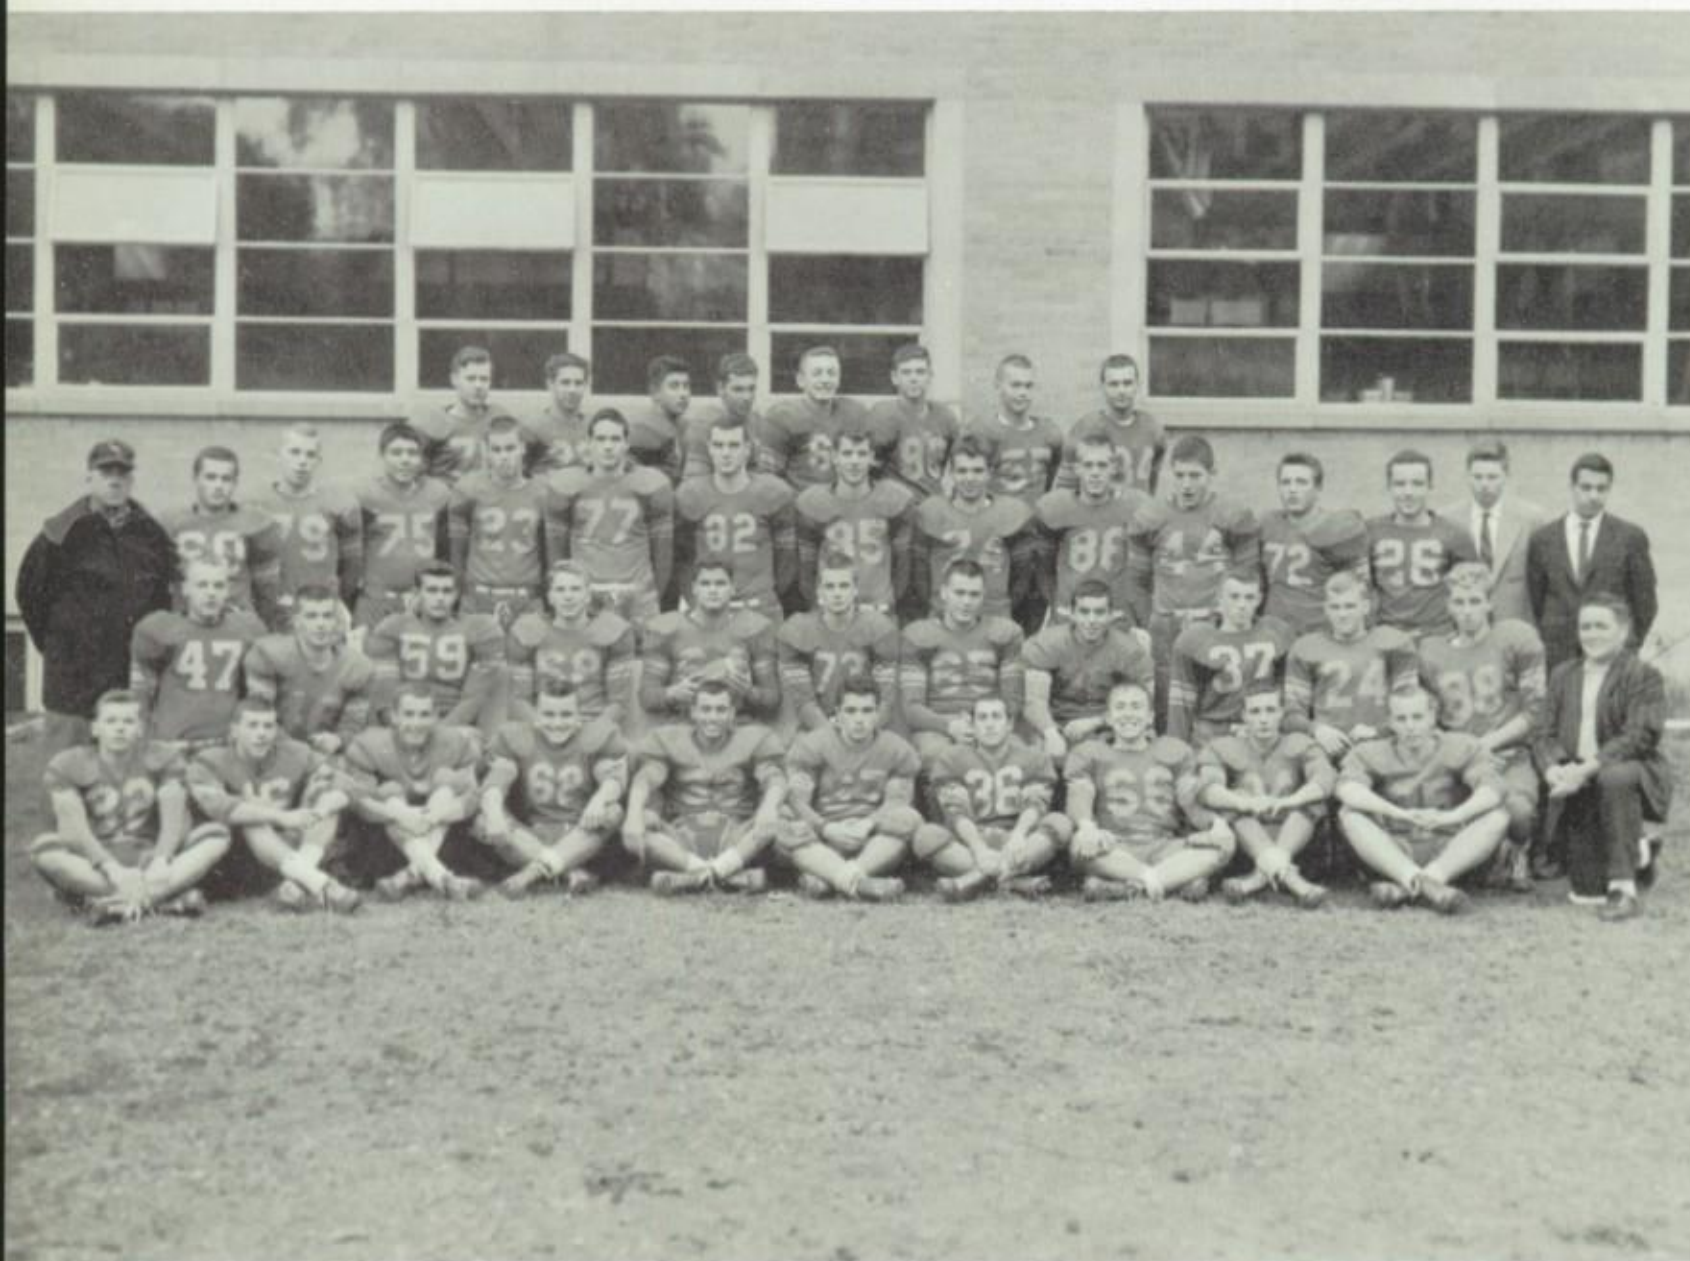

A full education does not neglect the physical development of the student. Strength of body, health, poise—toward these must adolescent limbs be trained. On the gym floor and in the swimming pool, capable hands exercised our arms and legs to the agility and fluid ease that mark the well-rounded individual. But more often will our memories recall the competition of team against team in intramural and interscholastic play. Pounding down the field or cheering from the stands we learned the principles that apply not just for the here and now but also in later life. We learned teamwork, leadership, and responsibility. We were taught courage and never to quit even against extreme odds. And we saw what it means to be a champion in victory and in defeat. Athletics has been a planned part of our development as well as our favorite form of activity.

The chief link of the Crusader line—Captain Sam LaTona. For the past two years Sam has been the star lineman on the Crusader team, receiving first team All-Catholic honors this year and second team honors last year in his first full year as a lineman. We are proud to salute him as one of our finest Crusaders, both on and off the field.

Scoreboards and league standings did not highlight the past season. True, the statistics did indicate a slightly better record; but Coach Barnes' exit on triumphant Crusader shoulders after the Timon game indicated a much more impressive victory than a simple win. Effort and determination, team work and spirit,—here was our achievement; and here a won-lost column is not a proper measure. Gauge it by the Crusader crowds that found ample reason to cheer wildly; gauge it by the warm and weary feeling in the bodies and hearts of the gridmen after the games. Win or lose, we had the teamwork and the fighting desire to win that ranks the mighty in football.

In the opening game of the season, Canisius faced the Red Rapideers of Duffy, the defending co-champions of the Catholic League. The Redmen held a 13 point lead near the end of the first half. Coach Barnes sent end Dick Peer into the game. Vic DiMartina faded back and heaved a long pass; Peer snagged it and dashed into the end zone to score on an 86 yard play. Duffy led at half-time, 13-6. With play resumed, the Rapideers scored minutes after the kickoff. But the Crusaders whittled the lead to 19-12 when Kirk Kuhlmann crashed off-tackle to pay dirt. Seconds later John Nowicki recovered a Redman fumble on the Duffy 46 yard line; and Dick Wachter, shook loose by guard Ben Randle's key block, sprinted around left end and raced all the way. The ball exchanged hands many times during the final quarter until Duffy recovered a fumble on the Canisius 18 and scored with less than three minutes to go. Ar 1 taking one more on an intercepted pass, the Redmen from the Falls won the game 32-19.

The Duffy game, a thrilling debut to the Blue and Gold, seemed a mere defeat to Timon; the Greenmen "expected little trouble from Canisius." But the Crusaders ground out 71 yards in the second quarter to score and lead the Tigers 7-0 at the half. The ball then traded hands with neither team able to penetrate the other's strong defensive line. In the closing minutes, the Timon Tigers fought their way to a first down on the Canisius 4 yard line, only to be held by Captain guard Sonny LaTona and a determined Canisius line. John Drury intercepted Timon's fourth down pass, and the clock ran out.

Two creditable starts brought the Crusaders up against the stone wall of a powerful Fallon eleven. The high-spirited Flyers handed our gridsters their second defeat of the season, 32-6. But it was Crusader halfback Paul Smaldone who highlighted the game with an 85 yard kickoff return, the first this league has seen since 1954.

Ryan's stubborn defense stopped the Crusader opening drive on the 6 yard line; and capitalizing on Canisius mistakes gave the evenly matched Rams their 20-0 win. The Rochester game was just a cold, bleak day; strong Aquinas walked away with a 41-0 victory. But the Crusaders reversed the Aquinas defeat with a 41-0 romp over league newcomer Dougherty. Senior signal caller Jim Crotty sparked the offense with rollouts and passes that set up the scores; and a hard-charging Crusader line held the Cardinals to a minus 35 yards total offense.

A five year winning streak of 32 consecutive games stood behind St. Joe's as they received the opening kickoff of this year's game. But forced to punt on their first set of downs and to watch Paul Smaldone cut off-tackle and race 67 yards for a T.D. on the very first Crusader play, the Marauders were reminded that statistics do not count in this traditional rivalry. They had to fight to make it 14-6 in their favor; but even then a relentless drive down the field, climaxed by Paul Kavanaugh's plunge, brought the half-time score to 14-13. And strong defense prevented all scoring until the final moments of the second half when St. Joe's made it 21-13.

The record book lists two wins and five defeats. But not written in ink upon paper is this season's real record: fighting Crusaders are always to be feared.

Giambrone gives St. Joe's and the ref the slip.

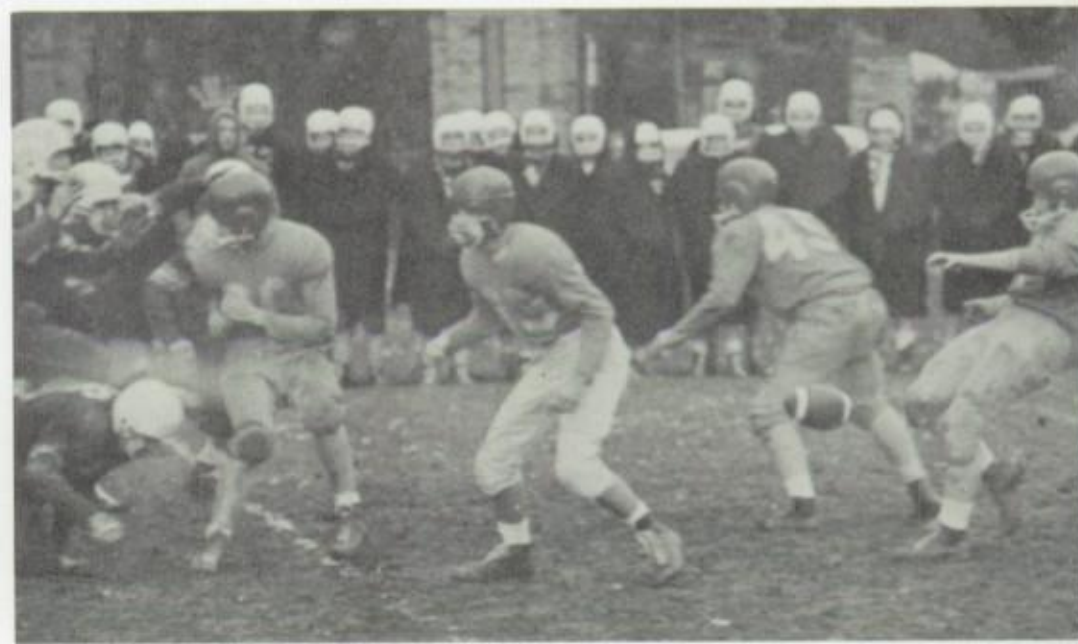

The Canisius Jay Vees took league laurels for the second straight time after downing St. Joe's 26-0 at the close of the season. Hopes run high that this year's squad will furnish promising varsity material for next year. Quarterback Doug Giambrone led the team in ground gaining with such thrilling plays as his 90 yard sprint against St. Joe's from his own ten to pay dirt. And halfback Co-Captain Bob Hubbard's 35 yard gallop in the same game further indicates the Crusader's irresistible attack. Wins against Duffy, Fallon, Ryan, and St. Joe's, as well as a tie with Dougherty and only two losses at the hands of Aquinas and Timon are not the work of backs alone. A strong line, with such men as Dave Farley and Co-Captain Myron Saikewicz at guard, is also a necessity; and this the J.V. had, as well as a local rarity, drop-kick conversions by Dick Dziob's educated toe. Fine playing made the final record, 4-2-1.

Track

The crack of the starter's gun this spring will drive the Canisius spikesters hard off the blocks in an attempt to recoup past laurels. Fr. Pfeiffer and his squad are confident that Canisius has the potential to return the Msgr. Martin trophy to our cases. Third-place finishes in last year's All-Catholic meet as well as in the recent harrier All-Catholic do not tell the whole story. Last year's 6-1 season furnished experience on the cinders for practically a complete roster. This season, Canisius promises to field strong teams in all events. Returning lettermen Jerry Daigler and Frank De-Peters, along with Norm Getz, form the backbone of what should be an outstanding mile relay squad. John Bush in the 880 and Jim Reina in the 100, with George Lavid and Cross-Country captain Rog Kavanaugh in the mile, will make the Canisius squad hard to beat. And the cinder kickers can depend on shot-putter Frank Bonuito and freshman All-Catholic record-holder Skip Colvin to contribute their share to the thinclads' score.

Fish? Bird? Butterfly!

Timers and Judges ready! Swimmers take your mark! And with the crack of the gun the swimmers are off. This was the scene when visiting Canisius opened its season, invading Aquinas Institute of Rochester. Judging by the final score 63 to 23, Mr. Lamb and his Mermen had good reason to expect a highly successful season. The team's next appearance, against a powerful Cathedral Prep, proved a little more than they could handle, and the Crusaders found themselves on the short end of a 54-34 score. Rebounding from this early loss, the hardworking swimmers again drubbed Aquinas 50-36. With renewed spirit, Canisius traveled to Erie for a second meet. Our improvement was evident, but the meet was finally decided by the last relay when Cathedral nosed out the Canisius entry by a scant 2 strokes. The final score read 50-36. The fifth and final meet at Jamestown, was the high point of the season for the Crusaders. Strengthened by the midseason return of Bud Mahoney, 100 yard Junior Olympic Freestyle Champion, the Crusaders had upset on their minds. And upset them they did. When the spray had cleared, the chalkboard read 51-35 for the Crusaders. The team revolved around the nucleus of Mahoney, senior co-captains Jerry Thirion and Bob Striegel, and Louis DeVincentis. These veterans were backed up by a host of promising underclassmen.

Dick Myers demonstrates Most Valuable Player's form in championship game.

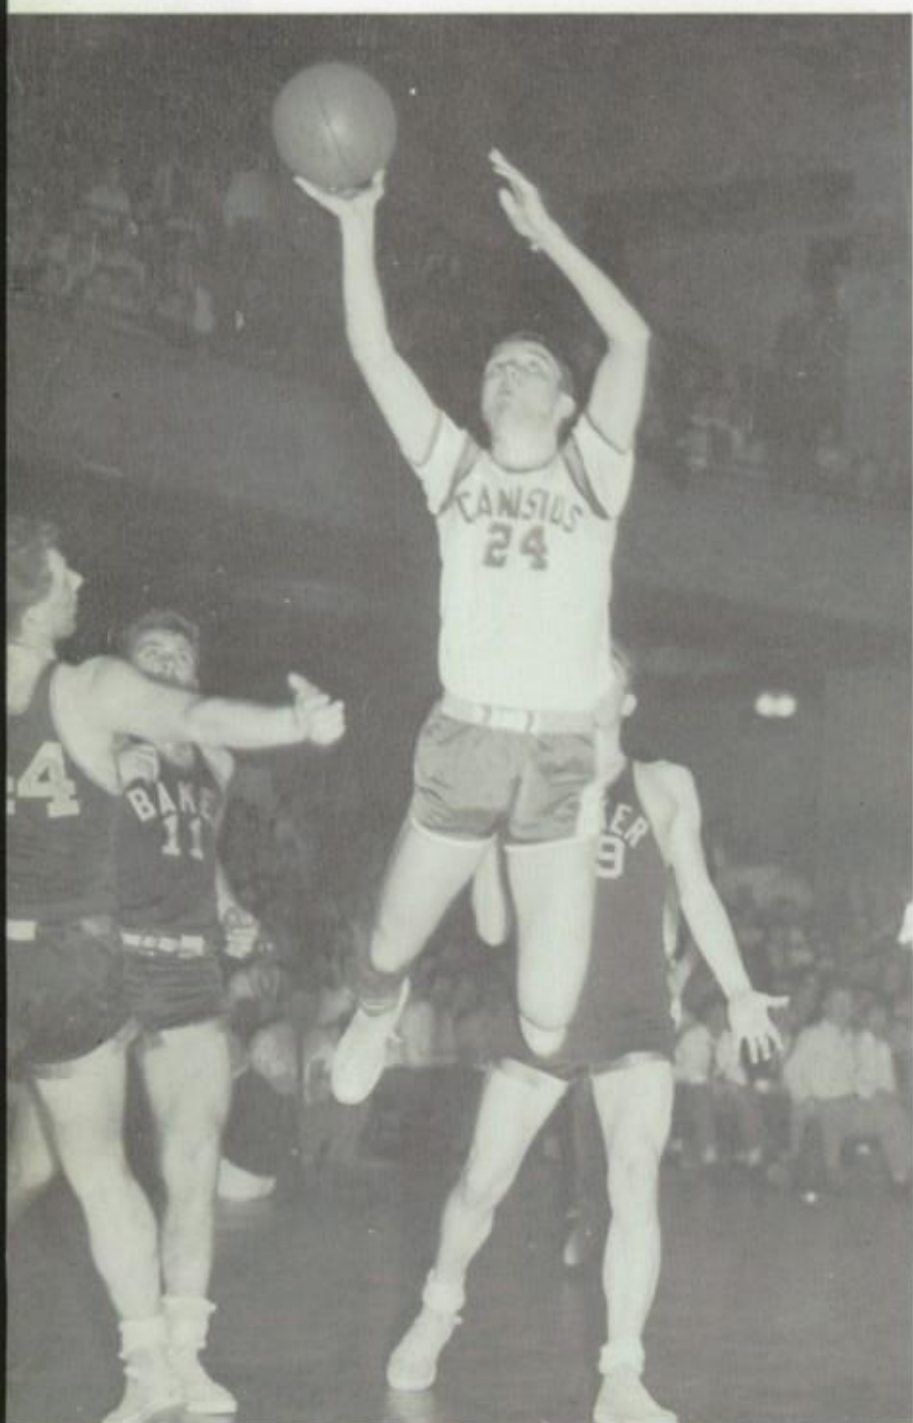

Every coach, at the conclusion of a season, makes an "examination of conscience" to find out what was responsible for the success or failure experienced by his team. In the case of the 1959-60 Canisius Crusaders, there were many factors which produced a league co-championship and, subsequently, the Manhattan Cup Playoff Title. The most important factor, however, was the unwavering loyalty and support of the student body, which in turn inspired our boys to heights seldom before reached by a Canisius team. If I had to single out the highlight of the whole campaign, it would be the second Baker-Victory game played in our auditorium. We needed a victory to be champions, and it was as if every member of the faculty and every student in the school wanted to have a share in that triumph. When our team ascended from the quiet of the locker room to be greeted by a standing, thunderous ovation from 900 fellow students, when the members of the starting five were cheered as if they were presidential candidates at a convention, it supplied all the incentive we needed, and it took the very heart out of our opponents. Old-timers may not agree, but take my word for it, it was the greatest display of organized spirit in the history of Canisius. With such support how could we fail?

As for the team itself, much has been said and written about our starting five, and I will add my own comments later. But first let me single out the other members of the squad. Dave Sousa, in his second year on the team, unfortunately was forced to stop playing at mid-season due to a persistent throat infection. Dave showed his courage and determination through three tough football campaigns, and we might have been able to use him in some of those rough games. From the departing seniors we will always remember the faithfulness of Gerry Okun, the enthusiasm and pep of Ted Wlodarczak, Bill Buscaglia's buzz-saw hustle, Joe Cervi's intense desire to do well. Frank Attea must surely rate near the top in team spirit and hustle, while Terry Agate's performances against Timon and St. Joe's will always be fond memories. For next season, we look forward to the return of Terry Jerge, and it is hard to find his equal for hard work and the spirit of self-sacrifice. Dick Wachter will also return, and this sophomore is living proof that good things come in small packages.

The only returnee from the starting five will be our All-Catholic selection, John Stasio, who, after two years of outstanding efforts, finally received the recognition he deserves. Always rated as the league's best rebounder, John added to his laurels this year by winning the league scoring championship and excelling in his all-around play. Our other four starters were Mr. Money-player, Mr. Determination, Mr. Under-rated, and Mr. Hustle.

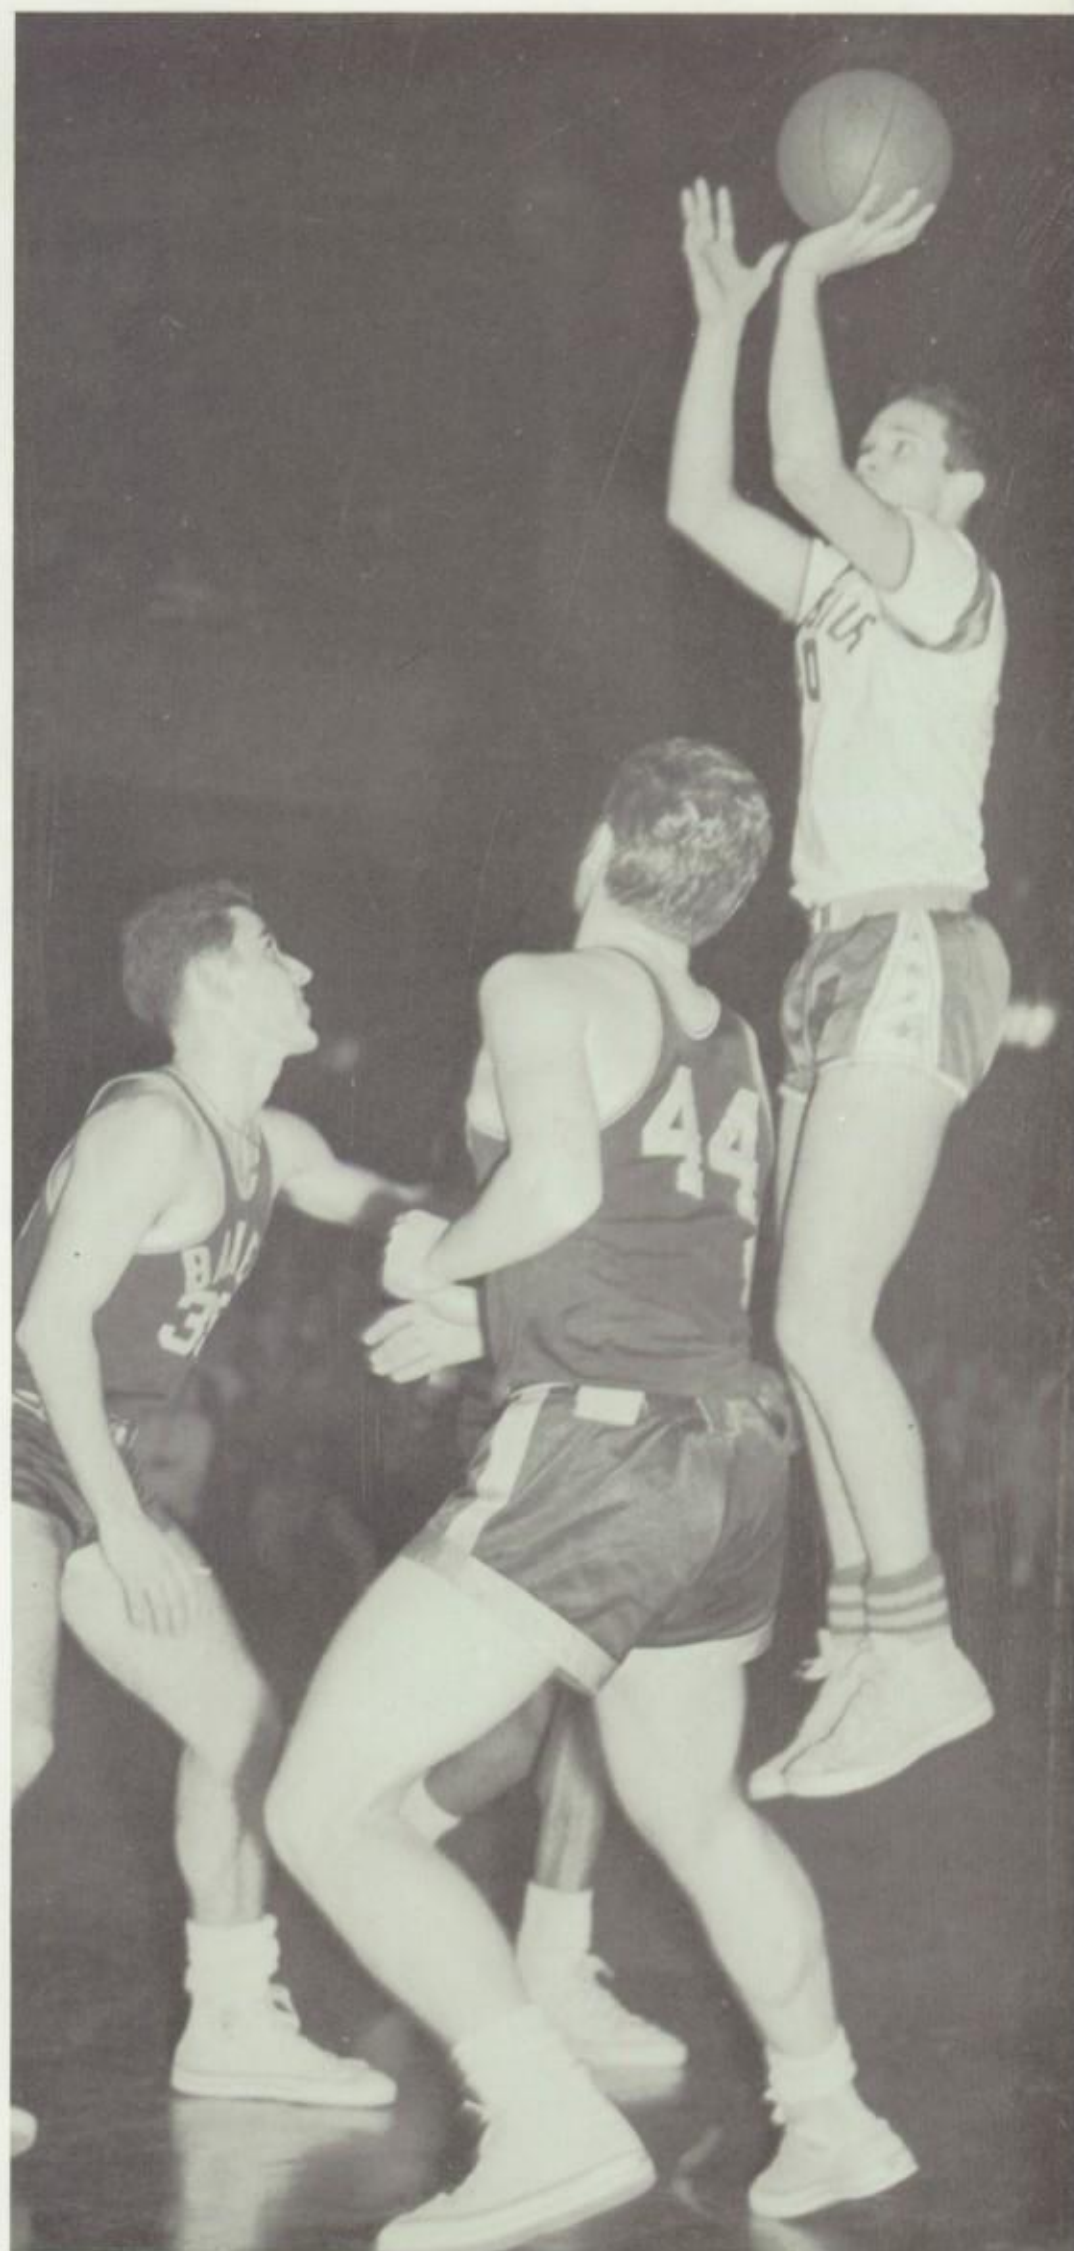

When the chips were down and we needed a couple of quick baskets it was always Bob Nist who came through. The best one-on-one man in the league, he could drive through for a twisting lay-up or knock the eyes out of the basket from 25 feet. He out-rebounded his taller rivals to such an extent that he was often classified as a "big man."

Since last September no Canisius student has worked as hard as Dick Myers, and no one has had as many obstacles to overcome. During the football season he suffered two black eyes, smashed lips, broken ribs, and a calcified muscle in his shooting arm. But Dick was determined not just to play, but to be the best player in the whole league. His efforts did not go unrewarded, as his selection as the Most Valuable Player in the Manhattan Cup Playoffs will attest. An excellent rebounder, Mr. Determination rates as the area's best hook shot and foul shooter, and his outside shooting against zone defenses has always been uncanny. If the foregoing is not proof that he merits his title, just recall that coming down the stretch, in the last six games of the season, Dick averaged eighteen points a game.

Wegrzyn does some hard thinking to get this shot off.

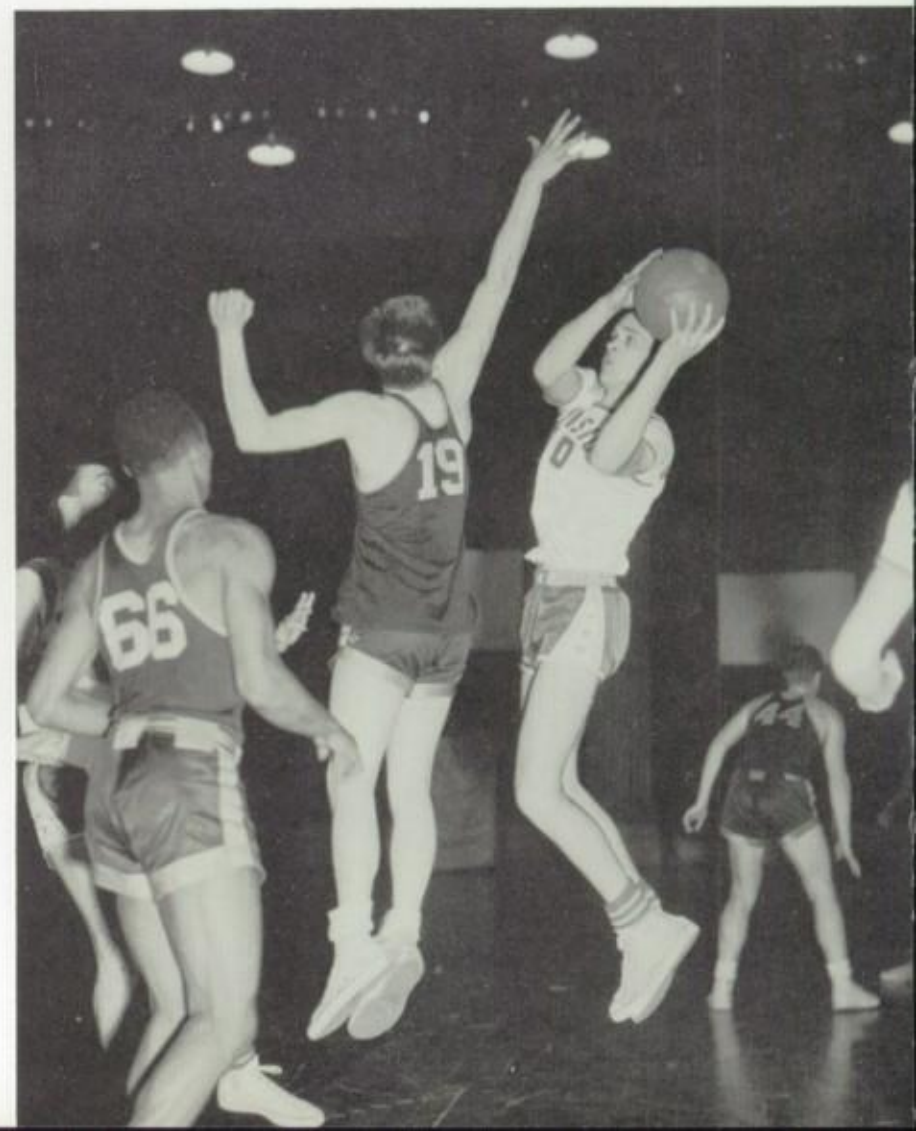

Stasio's shot leaves Kuryak groping.

Paul Smaldone lays it up with right . . .

Big John resorts to twist for this shot.

The most under-rated player in the league is surely John Wegrzyn. If it were John's lot to play with less talented team-mates, he could well have led the league in scoring. Assigned the dual role of backcourt play-maker and offensive policeman to guard the opposition's top scorer, he still managed to average 10 points a game. To illustrate his scoring ability, we cite the fact that against zones, when John played a forward position under the hoop, he averaged over 15 points a contest.

Every locomotive has to have an engineer and a fireman, and although it might have been against union regulations, Paul Smaldone filled both jobs. One of the smallest players in the league, Paul hustled the ball up the floor and directed the attack. He was a ball-hawk on defense and excelled on offense with his long, two-handed set shots. But his big contribution to the team was his tremendous drive and hustle. The little man with the BIG heart lit the fire under his bigger team-mates with his inspired play. Many great athletes have graduated from our school and been forgotten. Not so with Paul Smaldone, for his accomplishments have already assumed legendary proportions.

One's fingers, thank heaven, do not develop lumps as they pound out a coach's fond recollections on a typewriter. To express my feelings of appreciation in person to each member of this wonderful team would surely have produced a gigantic lump in the throat. This article has given me the opportunity to let them and the entire school know how I feel. May God bless and keep them always.

Under the expert coaching of Mr. Flynn, the hustle and spirit of the Junior Varsity cage team won through to a final season record of 8-5 in league competition. Wins over St. Mary's of the Deaf, Newman, and Nichols, double wins over Timon, Ryan, and Fallon, and a split with Duffy, somewhat overbalanced the double losses to St. Joe's and Baker Victory. Although greatly overshadowed by the feats of the Varsity champions, the Jay Vees had a loyal following to applaud their unusual depth and offensive potential. Mike Lacey, Ed Kobierecki, and Dick Peer, the three Juniors called up to the Varsity in the playoffs, as well as Mike Lawler, Frank Cryan, Jack Karaszewski, and Frank Michels will bear watching next year as the Big Five defends the Manhattan Cup.

The solid gold watches and bright red jackets awarded to last year's American Legion baseball team are emblems of last year's accomplishments. This year's goal is the Georgetown cup, symbol of supremacy in the Msgr. Martin Catholic League. The number of Crusaders that participate in the baseball program is one indication that we will always be a power in baseball. Graduation took a toll of only three from our team that finished second in last year's well-balanced Catholic league. Back from that team are All-Catholics Paul Smaldone and Al Cooper as well as veterans Dick Myers, John Wegrzyn, Warren Rosar, and Jerry Best. All-Catholic Paul Matty 'loves' many of his opponents.

Although the Catholic League is only beginning its fourth season, the Canisius Tennis team has already tucked away two consecutive championships. Under the able direction of Mr. Bischoff, S.J., a third crown is expected in 1960 from the highly spirited netters of Canisius. The Crusader racquet squad, though virtually the same as last year's is vastly improved. Its members, both regular and reserve, have polished their strokes and gained vast experience. Leading our highly talented group are seniors All-Catholic Paul Matty, and Brent Hughes; juniors Ed Burke and Bud Mahoney. Completion of the team will be a difficult task because of the quantity of outstanding courtmen: Alan Abello, Bill Gleeson, Bill Love, Bob Nist, and Jim Rybarczyk. The team recognizes its capabilities, and knows its potential, and with the Crusader spirit and talent, our net squad can almost be certain of its quest.

Intramurals

From the arrival of autumn all the way to the scorching days of May, there is always one escape from the prosaic life of the classroom. Under the direction of Fr. Sturm, S.J., a vigorous intramural program in baseball, swimming, volleyball, basketball, tennis, ping-pong, and bowling, attracts those students whom time or ability prevents from competing on the varsity level. During lunch hour and after school each day class meets class to determine year, division, and school winners of the coveted blue banners. Though other activities come and go and other sports have off-seasons, the variety and enthusiastic support of intramurals at Canisius will always rival that of any school in Buffalo or elsewhere.

A student body loyal to Crusader teams, following games intelligently, cheering wildly but not without unity; these are factors that generate school spirit, and without the men we call the Athletic Council sports functions would not run so smoothly. Promoting events with eye-catching posters, reminding you that you haven't purchased your ticket, keeping you informed as the game progresses, and channeling your enthusiasm in orderly cheers are their job. Working under the guidance of Mr. Carriero, S.J., they have contributed greatly to student support of athletic contests.

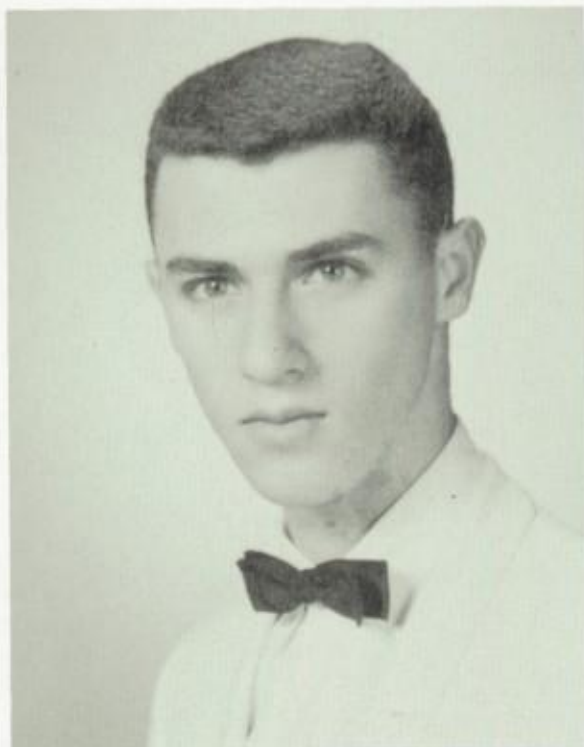

What four years ago seemed an almost unattainable goal is now upon us. We were then shy freshmen. Now we are about to graduate. Senior year has brought us new experiences and mixed emotions. There has been a certain pride in being fourth year men, in having successfully weathered the three lower grades. And yet, a twinge of sadness comes with the realization that our life at Canisius is soon to come to an end. We experience these opposed emotions as we look back over the past in our memories—pleasant, pointed by the joy and enthusiasm of youth—and then ahead, to graduation and college life. These past four years we see as a period in which we have become an integral part of Crusader life, enjoying its triumphs and sharing its shortcomings when the opponent proved to be the better man. We feel more than ever the knowledge and confidence that have been instilled in us, sometimes in spite of ourselves; and we can face our lives ahead, for these qualities have become part of us.

Epilogue

Our high school course has ended; now we walk forth into the adult scene that is our modern world. Graduation marks the end of a beginning, but a beginning that must serve us well for the years to come; the instruction and formation of the past four years must now be applied to the stern and unyielding realities of living itself. The experienced hands that have guided our struggles and steadied our falterings will no longer cushion our failings. God grant that the moral, intellectual, and physical growth which prospered under their care may continue. God give us the grace to become the mature Christian gentlemen they have trained us to be. Yet regardless of what lies in the uncharted future, Canisius has become such a part of us that no small measure of our hearts and affections will remain in these hallowed halls after we are gone.
